CHESAPEAKE BEACH

The Chesapeake Beach Oyster Cultivation Society's (CBOCS) primary mission is to grow oyster spat for one year and then deposit it in the Chesapeake Bay.

A second, equally important parallel mission is to educate people about the importance of the oysters' contribution to the restoration of the water quality in the Bay.

CBOCS started a program with Beach Elementary School in 2012 to provide an interactive field trip for 5th grade students on the Fishing Creek Trail. This program has expanded with the partnership of CHESPAX and the Calvert County Natural Resource Division to include nine county schools. We have hosted more than 3,200 students, teachers and chaperones during the past four years. The field trip is a hands-on experience which culminates a multi-class SMART Board program "Oysters of the Chesapeake Bay." After a brief orientation, each student has the opportunity to make observations, take measurements and analyze the oyster habitat to determine if Fishing Creek is an ideal location for oyster gardening. They have found the answer is a resounding YES!!

John Bacon, Chairman
Chesapeake Beach Oyster Cultivation Society

As a bonus project to their oyster program, the Beach Elementary 5th grade students hand-painted and decorated 160 oyster shells which hung on a Christmas tree in the Chesapeake Beach Town Hall lobby. On the last day of school before the Christmas holiday, each student took his/her shell home to hang on his/her own Christmas tree. Hopefully in future years, as the student hangs the shell on future trees, he/she will remember how this oyster helped clean the Bay.

CHESAPEAKE BEACH OYSTER CULTIVATION SOCIETY

Positively Impacting the Environment and Our Community

When the Chesapeake Beach Railway Trail was conceived way back in 1989, I never thought that it would achieve the success that it has! The trail was developed as a recreational and educational resource – a place to exercise and to observe the ecology and beauty of the Chesapeake Bay's tidal wetlands. The addition of the oyster recovery program has proven to be a very significant feature of the trail. CBOCS volunteers dedicate hundreds of hours annually to the oyster program, and to sharing the uniqueness of the Fishing Creek watershed with the youth of our community, and to all visitors.

Just a year after the trail was dedicated, the fifth-graders from Beach Elementary School began using it for field trips to learn about the oysters. The word spread to other schools in Calvert County, and with the support of CHESPAX and the Calvert County Natural Resource Division, all nine of the county's elementary schools are now sending their fifth grade classes to Chesapeake Beach twice per year to learn about oyster recovery, water filtration by the oysters, the value the oysters add to our ecology, and tidal wetlands in general.

These fifth-graders arrive for their field trips well-prepared, having spent many hours of classroom time in preparation for their visits. CBOCS volunteers greet them and their teachers and act as docents. I am personally very grateful to all who give so freely of their time.

Without the support of town councils over many decades, many volunteers, the citizens of Chesapeake Beach, our county, state and federal elected and appointed officials, this project would never have been built. This is a great example of working together to achieve a project of lasting value.

The Chesapeake Beach Railway Trail, the Chesapeake Beach Oyster Cultivation Society and all of the volunteers, teachers, students and all patrons of the trail are the lasting legacy of this project. I am eternally grateful to everyone involved.

Bruce A. Wahl
Mayor
